Jim Berry, Detective With Alleged Dynamiting Trio Says Men Are Most Vicious Criminals of Century.

BURNS IS GRAND STAND PLAYER SAYS A SLEUTH

Claimed That Small Arsenals Found in Grips Owned By McManigal and Jim McNamara When Arrested.

By ELWOOD M. ALBRIGHT.

Swarming with detectives and snipers of detectives Santa Fe limited train No. 3 was the object of curiosity and apprehension in every town and hamlet at which it stopped yesterday. The three prisoners aboard were James W. McNamara and Orville E. McManigal, confessed dynamiters on a wholesale scale; and John J. McNamara, secretary of the United Structural and Ornamental Iron Works of America, accused of complicity in the crimes. Yet in the midst of the array of detectives of the Burns agency the Chicago police detective bureau, and the unknown representatives of one or more other bureaus who had attached themselves like leeches to the cavalcade, the prisoners were a subject of comparatively little human interest.

The prisoners were but pawns in the game. Two had confessed, the third was taciturn, but the circles within circles of detectives were alert, expecting surprise from several outside sources and suspicious of each other. In several cities that they passed habeas corpus writs had been prepared, and local officials were prepared to take the prisoners away by force. Friends influential or fanatic were likely at any moment to wreck the train. Any delay would have had more serious consequences in delaying the action of the courts, for if sixty days elapse between the time of the arrests and the trial, the extradition will be declared illegal under the California laws, and the patient work of half a year would be seriously discounted. Quite accidentally the two parties met at Dodge City

OPINION PREVAILS THAT TRAIN THREE DOES HESITATE

Santa Fe Westbound Flyer Sometimes Stops at Grants for Water and Coal and Passengers.

The backhanded phrase, "caused a smile on the part of," was again worked. Why wasn't the other hand's reflection of words, "a mild surprise," used this time. Just who the "smile" was caused, "on the part of," is not known. But it must have been some one.

The special, or alleged special, dispatch, reproduced herewith printed in our esteemed contemporary this morning, "caused a smile on the part of," a great many people.

Here it is: Read it for yourself.

STORY OF INTERVIEW RANK TAKE, SAY THE OFFICERS

Gallup, N. M., April 25.—The report that Bryce or J. B. McNamara had been interviewed by the reporter between Albuquerque and this city and that a telegram had been sent at Grants caused a smile on the part of the detectives guarding the McNamara party on the California limit of this evening when it reached Gallup.

"Absolutely no one has communicated with the prisoners aside from the officers since they were arrested," said one man. "No telegram was sent at Grants, no one got off and no message was dropped off as the train was going about forty miles an hour when it passed Grants, and as usual it didn't even hesitate."

And now read what Arthur G. Wells, general manager of the Santa Fe coast lines has to say about train three stopping at Grants.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 26th, 1911. Albuquerque Evening Herald,

Albuquerque, N. M.

Train three not scheduled to stop at Grants. Does sometimes stop to take water and meet opposing trains.

A. G. WELLS,
11:25 a. m. General Manager.

And now read what L. T. Delaney, manager of the Western Union Telegraph office in Albuquerque has to say about "the rank take" sent to the Evening Herald yesterday evening from Grants and another from Gallup. Notice that Mr. Delaney makes the following statement and swears it to before a notary public:

Territory of New Mexico,

County of Bernalillo.

Personally answered before the undersigned, an officer duly authorized to administer oaths, L. T. Delaney, who is being first duly sworn deposes and says:

I am manager of the Western Union Telegraph company in the city of Albuquerque. On the afternoon of Tuesday, April 25th, 1911, the Albuquerque office of the Western Union Telegraph company received a special telegram from the Albuquerque Evening Herald, 8601 at Grants, New Mexico, containing an interview with men on Santa Fe passenger train No. 3, accused of dynamiting the Times building in Los Angeles. Later this office received another special telegram from Elwood Albright filed a claim, stating that he had received that city and would not continue further on Santa Fe train No. 3.

L. T. DELANEY.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 26th day of April, 1911.

P. F. MCANNA,
(SEAL), Notary Public.

My commission expires May 1, 1912.

AREN'T AMUSED AT LIMITED FAKE DISPATCH

Does the limited stop at Grants, N. M.?

"It certainly does," said George Arthur of Gross Kelly and company this morning. "I make a large number of trips to Grants each year. I usually go on the limited; it is not scheduled to stop there but it nearly always does and I have never failed to have it stop when I have gone there."

ISAAC BARTH SAYS HE TAKES NO. 3 TO GRANTS

"I frequently go to Grants, N. M., on Santa Fe passenger train No. 3 which a Herald reporter rode to there yesterday with the alleged dynamiters of the Los Angeles Times," said Isaac Barth, this morning. "I was surprised to notice a statement in the morning paper that the train does not stop there. I have never known it to pass Grants without stopping. Sometimes the stops are long but I have always had time to get off and take a suit case with me and I am accustomed to moving with considerable deliberation."

HERALD REPORTER SAYS HE RODE TO GALLUP

The Herald reporter who rode with the dynamite suspects was Elwood Albright. This is his statement:

"I was told to meet Santa Fe passenger train No. 3 at the local depot, board it and ride as far west as Gallup, but no further and seek an interview with the dynamiters and secure what other information concerning the matter that I could, sending in my story by wire wherever possible. I rode most of the way to Gallup in the seat with Bryce, one of the prisoners, and filed a story at Grants, N. M., the train stopping there long enough for me to hand my copy to the operator. I filed another short story from Gallup, which reached Albuquerque after the Herald had gone to press. I left the train at Gallup and returned to Albuquerque today. The Hearst men on the train told me that no other newspaper men had talked with the prisoners."

The story may have been used in the murder of Jerry Lynch, a watchman on the Chicago Junction railroad bridge, which is one of the string of crimes credited to them. Some of our men have been on hunt-and the presence of the other parts of the prisoners on the train was kept from the knowledge of the arrested men.

Uncertainty lurked in every minute of the journey overland, and the strain experienced by the detectives was perhaps more severe than the mortal anguish of the prisoners.

"I have not slept for more than three hours in a time for weeks," declared Guy Bettinger, sergeant of the Chicago force of police detectives, to a reporter for the Evening Herald who joined the escort at this point yesterday noon. "For sixteen days before the arrest we were on the go day and night. We knew who the men were within a certainty, but it was necessary to cover their every move until we could find them with the goods on. Owing to the magnitude of their operations we knew that we must have absolute proof before taking a precipitate step. When the opportunity came, we were prepared to meet it. We shadowed McManigal to Toledo, saw him meet Jim McNamara and exchange words with him on a public street. Later we kept watch over them roaming together in Toledo, followed them to Detroit and picked them up in the act of registering at a commercial hotel. We knew what their grips contained.

Their grips had a number of time clocks for releasing dynamite sticks or nitro-glycerine, according to the nature of the "job," an arsenal of small firing pieces and a Winchester equipped with a Maxim silencer. I believe this gun may have been used in the murder of Jerry Lynch, a watchman on the Chicago Junction railroad bridge, which is one of the string of crimes credited to them. Some of our men have been on hunt-

REPUBLICANS FACE SUSPECTS REACH OPEN BREACH IN SENATE OVER PLACES

Insurgents Declare They Have Not Received Proper Treatment in Assignment of Positions on Committees.

APPEAL IS TAKEN TO CAUCUS THIS AFTERNOON

Washington, April 26.—Senators of every political shade were active today preparing for the struggle which may take place on the floor of the senate tomorrow over the committee assignments and as a result of which there is more than a possibility of an absolute split in the Republican ranks in the senate.

The Republican insurgents are frankly dissatisfied with their assignments and the Democrats are likewise dissatisfied.

The Republican slate will be presented at the caucus this afternoon, which promises to be stormy.

The regular Republicans insist that the insurgents have been well taken care of and there is no chance of overturning the slate so as to place La Follette on the interstate commerce committee. Committee on the finance committee and Bristow on the foreign relations committee, which are the points of difference causing the greatest trouble.

All negotiations are being taken by the joint police officers for the safe entrance of the prisoners into the city, and their incarceration in jail. It is believed the men will be taken from the train between San Bernardino and this city and brought in by automobile.

District Attorney Frederick is ready to proceed with the arraignment and will continue to speak tomorrow against the admission of New Mexico. It is not likely that he will influence the committee one way or the other, as his remarks are not expected to prevail, and he confines himself to a general denunciation of the constitution which was adopted by a vote of about two to one by the people in New Mexico.

The further concession was the selection of Senator Bourne for a place on the committee on appropriations

TREATIES PRECEDE PEACE OF WORLD

Baron De Constants Tells Audience at St. Paul That Present Propaganda is Not Carried on By Mere Dreamers.

St. Paul, Minn., April 26.—In speaking on peace last night, Baron De Constants quoted the following passages from the 1905 program of the international arbitration party of the French parliament:

"Some people profess to believe that the supporters of arbitration would like to see it applied to all questions, and that even if we were threatened with invasion we should not call out the whole armed strength of the nation but humbly ask to have the matter decided by a tribunal—a proposal which the enemy would be sure to reject. It is time to explain as clearly and unmistakably as possible that, so far from being mere dreamers, philosophers or men without a country, we have a clear conception of our duty and our responsibility. We believe that the policy we advocate for Europe is as clear, as prudent, as positive and as full of promise as the policy now followed is obscure and fraught with confusion and danger."

"Universal peace and simultaneous disarmament will never be anything but dreams unless science and the strictest methodical means are employed to hasten their coming. It may already be said that disarmament will merely be the last stage of peaceful evolution. Between this last stage and the aspirations we now entertain there is many a mile to be traveled, and always at the same pace.

It is useless to look for disarmament unless we first try the effect of a progressive reduction of armaments, and this reduction itself will be necessarily preceded by limitation, however, implies great changes in the relations among the powers, and these changes must be set down in treaties. Such treaties imply reciprocal concessions, due to a respect for justice and the consciousness of a new solidarity between the contracting states. Such treaties cannot be successfully carried out, nor even negotiated, unless public opinion is thoroughly aroused beforehand."

"On these lines, our program becomes very simple and clear. Our one object is to bring international arbitration into general acceptance and induce governments to resort to a reasonable and honorable way of settling, not all conflicts but the largest possible number of them by equitable means."

NO ELECTION IN COLORADO.

Denver, Colo., April 26.—Major Speer gained one vote on today's ballot for the United States senatorial election. Representative Tovey of Grand county switching Congresswoman Martin received the anti-Speer vote.

Tom Insley, accused of slaying John A. Hinckley, his brother-in-law, two months ago, and who was admitted to bail in the sum of $10,000 by Judge T. A. Abbott late yesterday will be out of jail within a day or two, according to Insley's attorney, Attorney E. L. Medier, who together with Attorney J. A. Miller, is defending Insley, said today that he was confident the necessary $10,000 bond would soon be forthcoming and that his client would be out of jail probably some time before Sunday.

At the same time the Diaz government wants to get him

KISSING BUG CREATES PANIC AMONG SHOPPERS

Dallas, Texas, April 26.—Contortion was created among approximately fifty lady shoppers in this city when Herman Beacher, awoke and kissed two of the women in the presence of a number of others.

The man was promptly arrested and placed in jail. He gave no reason for his strange conduct.

LOS ANGELES AFTER LONG JOURNEY

McNamara, Bryce and McManigal Are Still Wearing Heavy Shackles and Closely Guarded By Detectives.

BATTLE OF COURTS WILL OPEN AT ONCE

Witnesses Are Awaiting Arraignment and District Attorney Is Ready for Hearing; Unions Pledge Support

Los Angeles, Calif., April 26.—Hearings manacled and guarded by eight officers, John J. McNamara, his brother, James W. McNamara, and Orville E. McManigal, the alleged dynamiters, entered California on Santa Fe train at Needles early today and are due in Los Angeles this afternoon.

No attempt has been made to serve writs of habeas corpus on the officers and none is looked for.

All negotiations are being taken by the joint police officers for the safe entrance of the prisoners into the city, and their incarceration in jail. No attempt has been made to serve writs of habeas corpus on the officers and none is looked for.

Both the so-called "Progressive Democrats" here and the members of the Republican delegation declined to associate themselves with Blair and publicly stated that they had nothing whatever to do with any campaign he might be conducting and that they would not in any way co-operate or counsel with him.

He consumed the entire time of the committee at the morning session and will continue to speak tomorrow against the admission of New Mexico. It is not likely that he will influence the committee one way or the other, as his remarks are not expected to prevail, and he confines himself to a general denunciation of the constitution which was adopted by a vote of about two to one by the people in New Mexico.

His attack on the constitution has received but slight attention from the New Mexicans here as it is not believed it will carry much weight.

BURNS DECLINES TO TESTIFY BEFORE JURY

Indianapolis, April 26.—The Marion county grand jury today continued its probe of the so-called "dynamite conspiracy." This involves on the one hand the charge that Indianapolis has been the seat of an alleged conspiracy by dynamiters who in two years are said to have caused more than a hundred explosions directed against employees of non-union labor, and on the other hand the charge that enemies of the structural iron workers association have attempted to plant dynamite in its office building to discredit it and its secretary, J. J. McNamara, of the dynamite outrage. Detective William J. Burns was witness today. It is understood that he declined to testify.

Miners Pledge Their Support

Butte, Montana, April 26.—Butte miners union No. 1 of the Western Federation of Miners, the largest local in the United States adopted resolutions last night pledging moral, financial and physical support of the men charged with complicity in the Los Angeles dynamiting and now under arrest.

Private Marion will do well to stay on Mexican soil. He was "in bad" before he crossed the line and is now still worse off. While in jail he merely faced for the time being a penitentiary term at Florence and a court martial after discharge, but now he is faced with the possibility of being tried for treason.

In the opinion of the court the majority of the evidence upon which Hyde was convicted was circumstantial and there was reasonable doubt of the prisoner's guilt. Bail was fixed at $50,000.
